

The Coalfield Progress, August 7, 2009

Chefs coming to Norton farmers market

Two chefs from the Troutdale restaurant will be coming to the Tuesday, Aug. 11 Norton Friends & Farmers Market. Darrin Shelley, Corporate Chef of Troutdale Kitchens, and William Skinner, Executive Chef of the Troutdale Steakhouse in Norton, will hold a cooking demo around 5:30 p.m. using ingredients found in the market. They will provide free food samplings and hand out recipes to patrons. “These cooking demonstrations are so much fun for everyone,” says Chef Will, “and The Troutdale restaurants have a long history of supporting local food movements and farmers’ markets.”

Each week, locally grown, farm-fresh fruits and vegetables, home-baked goods, and homemade crafts can be found at the Norton market. Nancy Cox, market organizer and board member, had this to say, “Two weeks ago we had our first truckload of fresh peaches, and they sold in record time! We welcome these two talented chefs to our market where they will find the freshest and best tasting ingredients in town!”

---